

Search

by Luck34

Category: Star Wars Rebels
Genre: Adventure, Romance
Language: English
Characters: Ezra B., Sabine W.
Pairings: Ezra B./Sabine W.
Status: In-Progress
Published: 2016-04-15 01:06:17
Updated: 2016-04-22 21:37:45
Packaged: 2016-04-27 16:52:00
Rating: K+
Chapters: 6
Words: 8,874
Publisher: www.fanfiction.net

Summary: Sequel to 'Trouble'. Recommend reading the first one to understand what's going on here. Ezra and Sabine are sent to the Illenyum System to establish a rebel base there. However, the Empire won't let this happen easily. Will the two young rebels be able to accomplish their objective? And more importantly: will Sabine finally be able to reveal her feelings to Ezra? Ezra x Sabine.

1. Chapter 1

So guys finally I've returned with the sequel for Trouble, because guess what? SCHOOL TESTS ARE OVEEEEEER! And I'll have a next week free of college, so I can update more for you!

I know some of you might have got a bit disappointed with the end of my last fanfic. It was like that to introduce us to this story. And I can promise you: This one will end in the right way.

So I know reading all of those boring stuffs I've written sucks, so enjoy the first chapter! (Review pls)

Chapter 1

The Phantom dropped out of hyperspace, revealing in front of it the principal planet of the Illenyum System. It was a forest-like planet with an asteroid field around it. Although the crew had been recently in Kalee, a planet with large forests, it wasn't the environment they were used to operate in. And for Ezra, who was medically interned back on the Kaleesh species planet, it was something unknown for him.

'Look how much green there. It's fantastic! How can there be so much of it?' Ezra asked, staring through the cabin the large world.

'The galaxy is a big place. There's always some art unique to each planet.' Sabine replied.

Ezra turned to her, giving a small grin to the Mandalorian. He thought it was cool, that Hera had assigned Sabine to go with him on this mission. But there was something that couldn't get out of his head. A question.

'_Why did Sabine kissed me back on the rebel base?_' Of course, receiving a kiss from Sabine was great, no doubts. But why did she did that? Afterall, Sabine never showed signs of wanting a relationship, specially with Ezra. That's why he'd gave up on the flirtings. However all he remembered was waking up with Sabine's lips on his own lips. He did not know. Maybe she was just concerned about him, like too concerned.

But there was this thing Elith had whispered on his ear back on Kalee, before he colapsed do to the imperial implant he had on his back.

'Take care of Sabine' She'd said to him. Why? What did that mean? Ezra stayed confused while thinking about both the kiss and Elith's words.

The Phantom passed the asteroid field, then entered Illenyum's atmosphere. Soon, it had landed on an isolated location on the planet, to avoid been tracked by the imperial sensors on the world.

'Alright Chop, everything is out.' Ezra said, pulling out the last supplie bag from the small ship. He made a sign to the astromech. Then the droid took off with the Phantom out of the planet. But he wasn't going to leave the system, because if Ezra and Sabine needed any type of extraction he'd be near to help them.

The two young members then stood looking at the vast forest in front of them.

'It's gonna take a long time.' Ezra said, rooling his eyes.

'More time, more fun.' Sabine responded, winking at him.

The padawan smiled. Then the two entered the forest. Up until now all they knew is that they needed to find the imperial base located in the planet, and this base was inside a temple. However there were, according to Commander Sato, innumeros temples on the world.

'So' Sabine started 'Do you think the first temple will be like what? Some kind of ancient piramid or what?'

'If it's a Jedi Temple, I can assure you it really won't look like a piramid. So let's expect for anything.' Ezra answered.

'Do you think it's a Jedi one? Now that would be interesting!'

Sabine said, smiling.

'Why?'

'Because I've never been on one.'

'Hey, if it happens of Lothal getting free from that imperial blockade, I'll take you to the one there.'

'Is it a promise?' Sabine asked, with excitement on her eyes. Ezra thought it was because she'd want to see the art inside of it. Little did he know that it was because she just wanted to stay with him, and in a Jedi Temple, it would be not only unforgettable, but incredible.

'Yes, it is.' Ezra answered winking at her. She winked back, and both continued to walk through the trees.

After about half an hour, they'd found nothing more than woods and plants.

'C'mon! If there are innumerable temples here, why can't we see any of them?' Ezra yelled.

'You're only using your sight to look for it, Ezra. Try to use your others senses' Sabine said.

'Yeah, like we're going to fall into one right now.' Ezra joked. Sabine gave a small grin.

But when Ezra gave his next step, both he and Sabine heard a cracked noise. They looked at their feet, and saw a lot of cracks.

'I have a bad feeling about this.' Sabine said. Then they fell.

Luckily, both of them were able to hold on the board of the forest's floor. There was a large hole at the area right now. It was at least five meters depth.

'Sabine! Are you okay?' Ezra asked, trying to reach her.

'I'm fine!' She answered 'Just hopping for...'

But then the board where she was holding on cracked.

'Uh-oh' She said, before falling again.

'NO!' Ezra screamed. Then he made an impressive maneuver. He turned in mid-air, and grabbed Sabine's hand. His feet were holding him to the forest's floor now. He was upside-down.

'Wow, that was impressive. Thanks.' Sabine said.

'No worry, I've got you.' Said Ezra, with an uncomfortable smile because of the position he was right now.

'So, how do we get out of this?' Sabine asked.

'I've a plan. I'll drop you, and leave you safely to this cave's floor with Force. Then I'll try to manage getting out of here.' Ezra responded.

'Wouldn't it be smarter if you leave me out of the cave, then I'll help you?' Sabine implied, holding Ezra's hand more tight, to avoid falling.

'We don't know what's inside here, it might be a temple, or maybe a secret passage to the imperial base itself. And besides, here the ground is entirely cracked. It would be dangerous for both of us.' He replied.

'Okay then. On three.' Sabine advised. Ezra winked back, with his hole face red do to the pressure of the blood in his head.

'One...'

'Two...'

'THREE!'

Ezra dropped Sabine, but instantly grabbed her with the Force. Then he managed to leave her carefully on the cave's floor. Sabine felt like she was flying, or something like that. When done with Sabine, Ezra screamed :

'Okay, now it's me! Wait a...'

But then there was a huge cracking like sound. It came from the floor Ezra was holding on with his feet. Before he could realize, he'd already fallen.

He was able to turn himself in mid-air. However, when he landed, he hit his left knee into the ground.

'EZRA!' Sabine screamed, worried about the padawan's condition.

'I'm okay!' He replied, with a painfull voice 'Dammit, right the one where I've got a shot!'

'Can you walk?' Sabine asked, looking at his knee.'

'Perhaps, let me see.' Ezra responded. He got up, limped a bit, but then was able to stand up and walk.

'Now, which secrets does this cave hides?' He said, igniting his lightsaber to light the way for him and Sabine. 'C'mon, it'll be fun!'

Sabine started to follow Ezra. She was still staring at his left knee. She didn't wanted Ezra to get hurt even more. Not only would it compromise the mission, but she wanted him safe and sound alongside her. She wanted to talk to him while he was awake and not injured. She wanted him with her. It was only a matter of time for Sabine to decide revealing her feelings to the young Padawan.

So guys, what do you think about chapter 1? Did you liked it? Pls review so I can know if you are enjoying the story, to correct me of any grammar mistakes I've made (because, as you may already know, I'm illiterate :p), for me to know what you expect to happen here, and for whatever reasons I don't know ;P

Thank you for reading, for all of you.

May the Force be with you. Always.

2. Chapter 2 : Connection

What's up guys? I'm back finally! This week there won't be any lack of updates because I'm free of school! (but not from the basketball training, which isn't bad, from a my point of view :p)

*So yeah I've made a research and I've discovered that the name from the planet isn't Illenyum, but D'Qar. Illenyum is just the name of the system. Sorry the mistake folks. ****

And I see you're enjoying this story! I'm glad to read this. Thank you all for the support. Check out also the prequel for this fanfic : Trouble, to understand a little bit of why Ezra and Sabine were sent to D'Qar, who's Elith, blablabla

I write a lot :P. Here's chapter 2!

Chapter 2 : Connection

Ezra and Sabine followed the long corridor there stood in the cave. If it wasn't Ezra's lightsaber, they'd be in complete darkness right now.

'Ezra, I don't think this cave is going to lead us to somewhere important or something like that.' Sabine said.

'Hey, no worry. You've said yourself for me to use my other senses. That's what I'm doing now.' Ezra replied, smiling to Sabine.

'Fair enough.' She responded, crossing her arms.

Up untill they'd found nothing but rocks and sand. Inside the forest, Ezra was the one who was complaining. Now it was Sabine.

'We should return. There's nothing here Ezra. Ezra?'

The Padawan didn't answer. He was staring at something in the dark.

'Ezra, what's...'

'Shh! Quiet.' He said, putting his hand over Sabine's mouth. She took it off.

'We're not alone. Stay behind me.' Ezra completed, standing in defensive position. The lightsaber couldn't light any further than one meter from him. Sabine grabbed her pistols, and aimed at, from what she could see, nothing.

'A disturbance...' Ezra whispered. Then from the darkness of the cave came out a lizard. Not a normal-sized one however. This one was taller then the Jedi learner and the Mandalorian. The creature roared. It was a menacing and disgusting roar.

Sabine fired her pistol, but Ezra deflected the shot with his lightsaber back to a rock. The loud noise of the blast made the giant reptile in front of them, Ezra was able to hold the beast with the Force.

'What are you doing? This animal is going to eat us! Let me handle this.' Sabine said, lifting her pistol. However Ezra put his hand in front of it.

'No. Let ME handle this.' He argued. Sabine stood there in shock.

'What? But this creature is dangerous! Are you crazy?' Sabine asked, not believing that Ezra interfered on her act.

'Why you Mandalorians want to deal everything with violence?' The Padawan replied, taking his hand of the blaster Sabine held.

'There are peaceful ways to accomplish things.' Ezra implied, dropping the giant lizard. The Jedi felt the animal was furious, so he lifted his hand. After a couple of seconds the reptile was calm. It almost felt like now, instead of a menacing beast, it looked like a trained dog. Ezra had successfully connected with the creature.

'How? It was about to...'

'Like I said: there are peaceful ways.' Ezra said, cutting Sabine. The Mandalorian couldn't believe on what the young Jedi had just done.

'C'mon, our buddy here knows the cave better than us. He'll help us.' Ezra said, mounting on the creature. Sabine exited, but soon followed. They now were riding their new 'buddy'.

'That was impressive.' Sabine said to Ezra.

'I know.' Ezra replied, smiling.

She smiled back. Ezra's abilities in the force were growing stronger, something to admire. But it appeared Sabine was the one who most admired it. Not even Kanan did so much like her, not because he couldn't see it, but because he already knew the potential Ezra had.

After some minutes riding the creature they'd stopped at an exit. It was already night, but Ezra and Sabine were able to see what was in the distance.

'Look, a temple!' Sabine said, pointing to the huge construction.

'We'll go there tomorrow. Now we need some rest.' Ezra responded. He turned to the lizard who had brought them there.

'Thanks for the ride, buddy.' He said, smoothing the creature. The lizard then headed towards the cave, and disappeared in the darkness.

The two teenagers then built a campfire. Inside their supplies bags however there was only one sleeping bag. Ezra offered Sabine to use it.

'What a gentleman you are.' She joked, chuckling a bit.

'Hey, you need it more than I do. Good night, Sabine.' Ezra replied, laying on the ground there. He used his jacket as a pillow, so he wouldn't need to lay his head on the cold ground.

Unlike Sabine, Ezra felt asleep faster than anybody. After about a couple of minutes he was already in deep-sleep. But Sabine couldn't. She was too busy trying to arrange her sleeping bag. How was a Mandalorian, member of a warrior culture, great artist, explosive expert not able to do that?

Soon, a strong wind hit her. The sleeping bag dropped from her hands, and was taken by the wind.

'_Great! What now?_' She thought on her mind. Sabine looked at each supplies bag, but there was nothing she could use to sleep.

Then she stared at Ezra. It appeared like there wasn't any other option : She'd need to sleep with him.

It was embarrassing, for her. After all, she was going to lay beside the man she loved. But he didn't know her feelings for him. He was going to be confused when he woke up. But it didn't matter. She was going to be comfortable with him, or uncomfortable with the rocks.

She layed her body next to Ezra's, and her head was laying on his chest. She felt awkward, because she thought she'd only be with him like that inside the Ghost or somewhere comfortable. Not in a cave-exit.

Ezra, while sleeping, put his arm around Sabine. If it was on purpose, she didn't know. But she liked he'd done that. Sabine felt safe in his presence. It was not a big moment, but it was great.

End of chapter 2! Pls review so I can know what you're thinking about the story, what you're expecting to happen, and to correct me of any grammar issues. Again, thank you for the support. I'm glad to know you're enjoying it. Have a great day, all of you!

3. Chapter 3 : Past or Future

Hey everyone, all ok? So yesterday I've read a lot of Sabezra's fanfics to have an idea of what I can put in this story. I've also rewatched Twilight of the Apprentice and The Force Awakens because, well, I'm a Star Wars fan! (and because of something I'll try to develop in here). If anyone wanna talk to me about some ideas for the fanfic, my grammar mistakes or just wanna talk, private message me!

*Remember to review pls, helps me a lot. ****

Chapter 3 : Past or Future

It was already morning, and Ezra had just waken up. Here, he could relax while opening his eyes. Instead of the annoying sound of Chopper and Zeb, he had the calm and comfort sound of the birds, the trees, the wind, and... the snore?

Ezra felt something laying on his chest. He lifted his head, and saw that it was actually Sabine's head. Her body was laid besides him, and somehow his left arm was around her. He looked around, but couldn't find the sleeping bag which he had given to Sabine.

He pulled himself up, and carefully put Sabine's head laying on his jacket. She was still sleeping deep, by the way her snore was sounding.

'_Never thought I'd see that_' Ezra thought, giving a small grin. He started to make the breakfast, with the food packs they had brought.

Sabine woke up with the smell of the food. She opened her eyes, and looked at Ezra preparing the food.

'Good morning.' She glared.

'Good morning.' Ezra replied, checking on the food. He then smiled, and turned to Sabine 'Hey, I didn't know that Mandalorians snored.'

'What!?' Sabine yelled, putting her hand over her mouth. Ezra started to laugh, and a lot.

'Hey, no worry, I won't tell anybody of that.' The Jedi said, still with a huge smile on the face.

'You better not to. What are you preparing there?' Sabine asked.

'The crew's favorite. Space waffles.' Ezra answered, giving one of them to Sabine.

'Thanks.' She said, hungrily eating her waffle. Ezra had already finished his, so he started drawing on the sand there stood.

'What are you doing?' Sabine asked, biting her breakfast.

'A map. Kind of.' Ezra responded. He finished, then showed it to Sabine.

'I was analyzing at the landscape between us and that temple. If we take this way,' Ezra stated, pointing to a small passage in the forest 'we'll be able to reach there in about 10 minutes.'

'Great. What are we waiting for?' Sabine implied, finishing the waffle. Ezra smiled.

Soon they'd already packed all the things up, and now they were heading to the temple. In the way, Ezra looked at the trees top, and in one of them he noticed something strange.

'Is that the sleeping bag we had?' Ezra asked.

Sabine froze, then looked up. 'Yeah, well... There was this strong wind and... uh...'

'Don't tell me that a 'wind' was capable to beat the Oh Mighty Mando here.' Ezra jocked, chuckling at Sabine.

'Hey! Your little lizard friend there also didn't help me either with this!' Sabine lied. She didn't wanted to look pathetic, specially in front of Ezra.

'Wait, he got out of the cave during the night?' Ezra asked, staring at the Mandalorian.

'Uh... Yes! There was the wind, which...'

'Okay, tell me this story later. We don't have too much time.' Ezra said, cutting Sabine.

'Fine. Let's go.' She said.

After a couple of minutes, Ezra remembered something.

'Hey,' He started 'am I a good pillow?'

'What you mean by that?' Sabine asked.

'You know. You were laying on me this night, so I guess I'm comfortable. Right?' Ezra stated, giving a small grin to Sabine.

'Haha, very funny.' Sabine said, rolling her eyes 'I just didn't want to lay in the rocks. Anything is better than that.' Partially that was true. The other side of the story is that she actually wanted to stay beside Ezra.

'I'll take the part where I'm comfortable.' The Padawan replied.

'As you wish.' Sabine said. On the deeps of her mind, she thought : '_Me too._'

After some minutes they've reached the temple. The memory of such a bulding was partly good and bad for Ezra. Good because of the Jedi Temple on Lothal, and bad because of the Sith Temple on Malachor. But he didn't think on either of those memories. Now he was focused on entering the ancient building.

'So, how are we going to get inside? It looks like there isn't any...' Sabine's speech was cut by Ezra igniting his lightsaber. He then cutted the temple's wall, and force pulled it out.

'Now there is an entry.' He said. Sabine smiled, and the two got inside the temple.

The location had a lot of strange drawings and letters on it's walls. Ezra and Sabine couldn't understand any of them, but this didn't prevent Sabine to admire the art in there. Indeed, fascinating.

The two headed to some stairs in there. In the first floor of the temple there was nothing but those drawings, letters and dust. And it appeared that the second floor was actually in the high top of the temple. They climbed, and after half an hour they were in the top,

'Exhausting.' Sabine said, after both of them had reached the second floor.

'You're right.' Ezra responded.

In that floor there was something different however. There was an large corridor, which lead to a small chamber, that contained a table with a helmet on it. The Jedi and the Mandalorian headed towards it, and analized the helmet, It was entirely black, with the part around the eyes silver. The back of it resembled Vader's own helmet, but that part of it was smaller than the one of the fearsome Sith Lord. And it didn't looked like a helmet to help someone to live. It was a combat helmet.

'This is strange. A hole temple dedicated to this mask?' Sabine implied, staring at the artifact.

'Maybe some smugglers came here before us and stole everything, except this.' Ezra responded. He then reached to the mask, but when he touched it, all went black. He fell backwards.

'Ezra? EZRA!? What's going on?' Sabine asked, scared.

'I don't know... Argh!' The Padawan yelled.

He then started to see things. First, a firing red blade with a crossguard, smilar to the lightsaber he'd found on Malachor. Then, Hammerhead cruisers attacking an space station, with a figure wearing that helmet, but this time holding a stable lightsaber, dueling a Zabrack Jedi. Ezra turned, scared, and what he saw was another figure, with the same helmet, standing in a village catching fire.

'You're so right!' The figure said, in a dark tone. He then ignited the unstabble lightsaber he'd seen before in the vision. He swang the red blade, and cut Ezra. The Padawan closed his eyes, expecting to die. Instead, when he opened them, He was in a snowy enviroment. He looked around, and saw the same figure blocking it's crossguard lightsaber against a girl, which was holding a blue one without a crossguard.

'I can show you the ways of the Force!' The man yelled. The girl responded asking : 'The Force?...' She then suddently broke the lightsaber lock, and overwhelmed the man which she was fighting with. Ezra couldn't understand what was happening. He turned, and now it looked like he was inside a Stardestroyer. On his side stood the misterious man with that helmet on.

'Show me again, the power of the darkness...' The masked figure whispered. Ezra looked, and then saw Vader's burned mask in front of the man. Ezra closed his eyes, and, when he opened them, he saw Sabine's face. He was laying on the ground.

'Ezra? Are you okay?' The Mandalorian asked, worried about the boy.

'I think I just had a vision.' He said, looking around. There was a huge hole on the chamber's wall. From there you could see the entire forest ahead.

'When did that hole appear?' Ezra asked, confused.

'You don't remember? You threw the helmet on the wall, breaking it. But then you pulled it back to the table with the Force. Why?' Sabine implied.

'I have no idea.' Ezra responded.

'What did you see when you touched it? Sabine asked, concerned.

'Don't remember exactly. There were those two men wearing this helmet, one of them with a strange lightsaber. A lot of different places, duels and...' He took a pause, then completed 'Vader's burned mask.'

'What? How?' Sabine replied.

But she no answer. It was cutted by the sound of a ship passing the temple. The two teenagers got up and looked through the hole in the chamber. They saw a Lambda shuttle passing the location. Then it had landed somewhere not far from there.

'Well' Ezra started 'looks like it's time to cause trouble to the Empire.'

*After seeing Rey's vision in TFA I thought on my mind : '_Can there be some objects of extreme importance that, when a certain individual touches it, he receives a vision?_' And that thought run my mind when writing here. So I've decided to put Kylo Ren's helmet as some type of Sith artifact which dated back to the Old Republic era. What do you think about it? And what is the Empire up to in DQar? Let me know your thoughts and opinions in the review section, it helps me a lot. Have a nice week, all of you!*

And thanks for the support. I appreciate it. Really do. You guys are awesome!

4. Chapter 4 : Assault

Dude, I've never imagined that this story would be the succes it is. Thank you all for the supppport! While reading the reviews, I've seen a lot a things, like what you think will happen, and the tips you're giving me. You. Are. Awesome. All of you!

And maybe in this chapter we shall se an old character from trouble, who I think I didn't deep to much on it. Enjoy your reading ;D

Chapter 4 : Assault

Ezra and Sabine got out of the temple, and now they were heading towards the location where the Lambda shuttle had landed. In the way, Ezra felt a strong headache. He stopped, then kneeled.

'Ezra, are you okay?' Sabine asked, kneeling to see the Padawan's condition.

'I'm fine. Maybe something left from the vision. C'mon, don't worry about me. Let's go there.' Ezra responded, getting up.

'Fine. If anything is up, remember : I'm here for you.' Sabine said.

Ezra gave a small grin, then returned to run alongside Sabine to the supposed Imperial Base they've just discovered.

After reaching there, the two hid themselves behind a bush. It wasn't an Imperial Base. It was a mining facility.

'Something is not right. They're not mining minerals.' Ezra whispered.

'And how do you know this?' Sabine replied.

'Because this place is strong with the Force, in someway I can not understand.' Ezra responded.

'So we can't lose time. Follow me.' Sabine said.

The two walked through the line of the trees, to not beeing seen by the stormtroopers. At the top of the facility stood the Lambda shuttle they've seen earlier.

'_Something misterious in there._' Ezra thought, staring at the imperial ship. He didn't tell Sabine, but the headache he'd felt before wasn't do to the strange vision on the temple. It was do to the Lambda shuttle. Something in there. The feeling was unknown to recognize, but somehow it wasn't unfamiliar to Ezra. Anyway, he kept that in secret so he could protect Sabine. He'd sacrifice anything to keep her safe.

Sometime before that, when the shuttle landed...

The imperial officer stood there with a pair of stormtroopers. He was sweating, and shaking a little. He knew that someone important to the Emperor was coming there.

After touching the plataform, the shuttle opened it's ramp. From there got out an cloacked figure, with a strange mask. Each step it gave was menacing. After seeing the weapon in his belt, the officer came to realize it was an Inquisitor.

'Inquisitor, It is an honour. But, there hasn't been any reportings of Force users in here. So, may I know why you came?' The officer stated.

The figure stopped, then turned to the officer.

'I'm here following direct orders from the Emperor himself. If I were you, I wouldn't ask his wishes. Now, get out of my way, or you shall say goodbye to your precious neck!'' The Inquisitor said.

The masked man made a sign, and the two stormtroopers there followed him. Then he entered the forest, and headed towards the temple which stood next to the facility.

Back to Ezra and Sabine...

''Hey!''

The stormtrooper turned, only to be knocked out by a Mandalorian in pink armour. The other two troopers aimed at her, preparing to fire. But when they did, the blasters weren't in their hands anymore. Only part of them. They looked at their right, and saw a boy holding a lightsaber. The other part of their blasters was in the ground.

''Turn around.'' The Jedi said. and the two stormtroopers did so.

''To the wall'' The Mandalorian ordered. When the two guards reached there, Sabine started :

''Okay, so which one of you have the enter code?''

The two troopers looked at each other.

''We're not telling you anything, rebel scum!'' One of the guards replied.

''Oh yeah?'' Sabine said, picking up one of her pistols ''So why don't you prove the taste of blaster fire then?''

''Hey! Calm down Sabine!'' Ezra said.

''What? If they do not cooperate, then they must be eliminated! These were Sato's words!'' Sabine implied.

''So, let's do like this : If I fail at what I'm going to do, you can have your own fun with them. Sounds good?'' Ezra asked.

The Mandalorian hesitated for a moment, but then let the Padawan do his magic. Ezra analyzed the two troopers. After a couple of minutes, he said to the one of the left :

''You will enter the code on the blastdoor and let us in.''

''I will enter the code on the blastdoor and let you in.'' The guard repeated.

''Gary? You're kidding, right?'' The other trooper asked, confused on what his partner just said.

But he wasn't kidding. The stormtrooper got up, and headed to the door. Then he started to put the code to open the door.

''Sabine, do as you will.'' Ezra said, winking to the Mandalorian. The girl smiled under her helmet, then turned at the trooper beside her.

'This won't kill you.' She started, holding an EMP miracle 'But it will give you a big headache.' She then put the small explosive on the trooper's helmet.

Sabine threw one of the miracles to Ezra, and the Jedi put on the head of the other trooper, who was still repeating what Ezra ordered to him earlier.

The two teenagers then entered the facility, and the door behind them closed.

'Well done, Master Jedi.' Sabine said, giving a small punch at Ezra's arm.

'You see? Both of us had fun in the end.' The Padawan responded.

Then the two heard a small explosion. 'Yeah, you're right.' Sabine replied.

They were foiling the troopers while walking through the facility. They hadn't been realized by even one of them. In the way they walked, Sabine put various explosives around the location. After a while, the two reached the control room.

'Okay, so let's see how many people are in there.' Sabine implied, activating the visor on her helmet. Ezra turned, then said :

'Uh, Sabine?

'Not now. I'm counting here.

'Sabine?'

'Ezra, can't you wait a bit?'

'SABINE!'

'WHAT IS IT?'

But when she turned, she saw about 10 stormtroopers in front of her. They were already holding Ezra.

'Turn around, Lady Mando!' One of them ordered. She did as the trooper said. If she reacted against those guards, she and Ezra would be dead.

'I warned you.' Ezra implied.

Sabine roared her head, then the troopers brought them inside the control room. There stood the officer in control of the facility.

'Well, well! Look at what we got here!' The officer started 'Two rebels that will pay for their treason against the mighty Empire!'

'Mighty? Looks more like humiliated for me.' Ezra replied, smiling. Sabine chuckled a bit.

'Don't laugh, girl!' The stormtrooper behind her said, He then hit his blaster at the back of her head.

'NO!' Ezra screamed. The trooper then aimed at the boy. Sabine stood quiet.

'If you touch her again, you'll wish to never been born.' Ezra threatened. Despite menacing, Sabine liked the sound of that. ezra really cared about her.

One of the troopers then showed the officer Sabine's helmet and Ezra's lightsaber.

'Well, this is useless...' He stated, dropping the Mandalorian Helmet on the ground. Sabine felt angry 'But this! This is something you don't see often those days!'

The admiral ignited the lightsaber, and swang it in the air.

'Looks like we have a Jedi between us, gentleman! Our newcomer will be satisfied with you.' The officer shouted.

'What newcomer?' Ezra asked, afraid of the answer.

'Oh, I've forgot to mention it. I guess he was hunting you for a long time. Hope you have fun with the Inquisitor, Jedi.'

'Inquisitor!?' Ezra asked, with the eyes wide open.

'I believe this won't happen, buckethead master!' Sabine implied, looking furious at the imperial.

'Oh really? And why not, Mandalorian trash?' The officer asked. This was it. Now Sabine was pissed off.

'Because your playtime is over.' She responded. Sabine then jumped, took a small device from one of the stormtrooper's belt, and pressed it. Then the entire mining facility started to explode.

'Impossible. My facility!' The officer whispered. All the stormtroopers started to run for safety. Ezra and Sabine grabbed their stuff. Sabine gave a punch at the officer's face, and the imperial blacked out.

'Never drop an Mandalorian Helmet on purpose.' The girl stated.

'Sabine, let's go! This place is going down!' Ezra scream, opening a hole on the room's roof.

'Right!' She responded.

The two climbed the hole, then jumped out of the facility in time to escape it's destruction.

'I didn't expected to so such a beautifull explosion! My miracles don't have such power to do that!' Sabine shouted.

'No, they don't. But Kyber Crystals do.' Ezra said, staring the wreckage in shock.

'What you mean by that?' Sabine asked, confused.

'Sabine, you didn't see the control room's panels? They showed Kyber Crystals. That's why this place was somehow strong in the Force!' Ezra stated.

'So, what do we do now?'

'We look for the Imperial Base, while trying to foil the... Inquisitor.' Ezra put his head down. Now their mission had just got a lot more complicated.

So yeah, the Inquisitor from 'Trouble' is back to hunt down Ezra and Sabine! How will our young space couple here be able to defeat him? Pls remember to review, it really helps me folks. Hope you have a nice day!

****;)*

5. Chapter 5 : Chase

Folks, let me know something : I don't know if it's because of the time zone or region, but right now that I'm posting chapter 5 there are people begging for chapter 3. Why? Maybe it's something with fanfiction itself, but I have no idea.

*Pls remember to review. It means a lot to me. Really does.
;)*

Chapter 5 : Chase

The Inquisitor walked through the woods, with the two troopers following him. They've reached the temple. The cloaked figure noticed something strange at the location : there was a hole at the top of the temple, where the chamber of the artifact was located.

'Give me your harpoon.' The darkside user ordered to one of the troopers. The guard gave it to the misterious man, who activated it to pull him to the top of the ancient building. It took at least a minute to reach the top. When there, the Inquisitor saw the Sith helmet standing there, intact.

'My master will be pleased at last.' The masked figure whispered. He took the mask, and turned to get back to the facility. But when he did, he could see through the hole in the chamber the imperial building on fire.

The cloaked figure lifted his head. He was feeling something. After a while, he jumped out of the temple, hitting the ground hard. The troopers got scared. Then, the Inquisitor shouted :

'The BOY!'

Back to our couple...

Ezra kneeled. Sabine stopped running.

'Ezra, what's now?' She asked.

'He discovered us. Sabine, he now knows that I'm here!' The Jedi yelled.

'So what? You've defeated him once, why can't you do that again?' The Mandalorian replied.

'Sabine, when I had the force-outbreak, I touched the Dark Side. Kanan didn't feel it, but I did. I only defeated him thanks to the darkness. I have to find a way to overwhelm him without rage, and it's gonna take a while, I believe.'

'You'll have time to think while running. Now let's go! They're not far behind!'

Ezra turned, then saw the squad of stormtroopers heading towards them. He got up, and started to run the fast as he could alongside Sabine.

At the destroyed facility...

The Inquisitor stood in front of the wreckage, staring at it. He'd ordered the troopers that scouted him to watch over the perimeter. They came back alongside the officer that had the control over the location. He was all hurtled, but alive.

'Inquisitor cough, the facility was attacked. I've already ordered the remaining soldiers to hunt down the intruders. I'm sure-'

'You said there were no signs of any Force-wielder near by!' The cloaked man implied, cutting the officer's speech 'And now, I sense the presence of the boy who I had as prisoner in this planet. Your intel is useless, and so are you!'

The darksider ignited his lightsaber, and cut the officer's throat. He stared at the two troopers that accompanied the imperial high-ranker.

'I shall deal with this myself! Get me a speederbike!' The Inquisitor ordered. The troopers obeyed without hesitation.

Back to Ezra and Sabine.

'Eat this, bucketheads!' Sabine screamed. She threw a thermal detonator at the soldiers following them. The explosion behind took at least 5 troopers, by the screams they could hear.

Ezra ignited his lightsaber, and started to deflect the blasterbolts while running. Sabine was firing with one of her pistols, and when she had the opportunity, she'd throw an explosive at the imperials.

'Any idea of how many are left?' Ezra asked, getting cover behind a tree.

'About 12!' Sabine responded, throwing a grenade. Then they heard an explosion ''Now 9!''

''We can do this! Let's counter attack!'' Ezra yelled, getting out of his cover. He gained the attention of all the troopers, giving Sabine free room to shoot them down.

But then, an strange noise echoed the forest. Everyone stopped firing. Then, a speeder got out of the woods, and runned over Ezra. The boy hit the ground hard, but got up rapidly. He then saw the figure which was piloting the speeder. The Inquisitor.

''You, why are you here?'' Ezra asked, standing in defense position.

''I ask the same to you.'' The masked man answered. He jumped, ignited his lightsaber and rushed towards Ezra. A duel had broken out.

''Sabine, the stormtroopers!'' Ezra shouted, blocking the Inquisitor's blade.

''Right!'' She responded, throwing a thermal imploder at the soldiers.

The explosive hit one of the troopers in the head ''Ow! What was th-'' 'BUM'! All the stormtroopers were gone.

Sabine turned to Ezra, who was still fighting the Inquisitor. She aimed and started to fire at the cloacked figure. The darkside user realized that and ignited his second blade, blocking each shot Sabine gave at him.

Now its was a 2 against 1 duel.

''I would say this is unfair, if I had no power!'' The Inquisitor yelled. He then force-pushed Sabine hardly against one of the trees. She fell unconscious.

''SABINE!'' Ezra shouted, trying to reach the girl. But then the Inquisitor grapped him with the Force.

''Oh no. You are staying with me.'' He said, throwing Ezra in the ground. The Padawan got up quickly.

''So, when are we going to start having fun?'' Ezra implied, spitting.

The Inquisitor started to spin his lightsaber ''Only when I kill you.'' He replied. He then used the helicopter tactic against Ezra. Soon, the boy was almost overwhelmed.

''Okay, this is stupid, and unfair.'' Ezra said, refering to the flying spinning tactic.

The cloacked figure laughed ''Making jokes in your final moments won't bring you happiness, boy!'' He implied.

''No, but it will give me time to fool you.'' Ezra responded, giving a small grin. The Inquisitor stood there, confused.

'Sabine, NOW!'' The Padawan shouted. The Inquisitor turned, only to see two thermal detonators being thrown to him. He tried to cut them, but it was too late. They exploded near his chest. The Darksider was thrown out the woods to somewhere far from there due to the impact of the explosion.

'Thanks Sabs.' Ezra said, turning his lightsaber off.

'Sabs?' Sabine asked, looking at Ezra strangely.

'Yeah, Sabs. Don't you like that nickname?'

'Haha, alright then, Ez.'

Ezra smiled. Now they both had nicknames.

Soon the two got out of there. They needed to stay away from that location. After all, they didn't know if there were any stormtroopers still looking for them.

They found a cave far away from the destroyed facility. This one was very small, compared to the one they'd found earlier.

'We'll stay the night here. Let's prepare a campfire.' Sabine said, putting her things on the ground.

'Fine, I'll get the wood.' Ezra said. But when he turned, he was stopped by Sabine.

'Ezra, by the Force! What's that in your arm?' The Mandalorian asked.

The Jedi lifted his arm, and saw a huge cut across it. A lightsaber cut.

'Probably a gift the Inquisitor gave me. Don't worry, it's not hurting.' Ezra replied, picking up the wood.

'No matter. Here, let me help you.' Sabine said. She took the wood, and left it in the cave's entry. She then opened one of the supply bags they've brought. There was a medkit there.

'Give me your arm.' She ordered. Ezra lifted his arm, and Sabine started to roll a bandage on the cut. It took only 5 minutes until she had finished.

'Thanks again, Sabs.' Ezra implied, winking to the Mandalorian.

'You're welcome, Ez.' Sabine replied, giving a small grin to the Jedi.

After a while, they'd gathered enough wood to make the campfire. Ezra lighted it up with his lightsaber. They also had taken a lot of leaves to serve as beds for them. For the body it was comfortable, but not for the head.

'Here, take my jacket as a pillow.' Ezra said, giving it to Sabine
'Unless you want me to be it again.'

'Very funny.' Sabine said, taking the jacket. She then laid her head on it.

Ezra then also laid himself, and closed his eyes. However, he was awoken by the sound of a thunder. It had started to rain. And strong.

'Dammit!' The Jedi yelled, getting up to pick all the bags. The campfire was unable to be saved. It was a little outside the cave, so the rain quickly extinguished the flames.

Sabine got up. She was soaked by the water, because she was right beside the campfire. Her cloathes were all wet.

'Perfect!' She shouted, running to the interior of the cave. Ezra was already there, thinking about a solution to the problem.

He made a small hole in the ground, and put his lightsaber ignited in it. Unfortunately, the interior of the cave had space for only one person to lay in it.

'You sleep there. I'll stay on guard here.' Ezra said, putting the leafs on the space there was for Sabine to sleep.

'No, you need to rest.' Sabine replied.

'And so do you. We'd a tuff day.' Ezra implied.

'So... What do we do?' Sabine asked.

The two of them stared at each other for a moment.

'No kidding right now. How about I serve as your bed? I lay here, and you lay on top of me.' Ezra suggested

'What?'

'Well, I already served as your pillow. We both need to rest. It's the logical choise.'

'Fine.' Sabine agreed.

Ezra laid on the floor, while Sabine was on top of him. Ezra got his jacket and put it on Sabine.

'In case you're cold.' He said, smiling.

'I'm already wet. Of course I'm cold.'

'Well, now I'm also wet. Thanks.'

Sabine chuckled. The position they were standing was embarrassing, but it served.

'Good night, Sabine.' Ezra said, closing his eyes.

'Good night Ezra.' Sabine responded, laying her head on the Jedi's chest.

Not the type of night Sabine had imaged to have with Ezra

(again), but it was going to be memorable.

So yeah, just to say : Ezra is taller than Sabine (in this fanfic). Hope you guys enjoyed this chapter. I think it was the best one up untill now. Pls review, helps me a lot. Have a nice day, all of you! :D

6. Chapter 6 : Kidnapping

Sorry not updating yesterday everyone. Family problems :p.

Unfortunatly my free week is getting over, and with that the school comes back. But I'll try to update as soon as I have time.

Thank you all for enjoying the story! You guys are amazing! (Review pls ;))

Chapter 6 : Kidnapping

Sabine opened her eyes. At last she has awoken before Ezra. As common from her mornings, she used to stare at the walls, sky or anything that can't move, so she could start her day with focus. But, the only thing she could see was Ezra's closed eyes. And they were very, very close to her.

Then she realized her lips touching at something. It was Ezra's own lips.

'_By the Force!_' Sabine thought, getting up quickly with her cheeks red. Was the young Jedi there... kissing her?

The Mandalorian started to analize the Padawan. After a lot of touches on his body, she came to realize he was still sleeping.

'Probably some movement I made during the night.' Sabine said to herself. But then she remembered a dream she had before waking up. It was of her kissing something. Someone actually. She couldn't remember well, but she knew she kissed a person on her dream.

'_Really? The second kiss I give him while he's sleeping!?' Sabine talked on her mind. When was she going to do that with Ezra conscious?

Her feelings were striking one another now. She needed to control her emotions so she could tell the Jedi what she felt for him. She needed corage. After half an hour on the depths of her mind, Sabine came to a conclusion :

'_I'm going to tell him tonight._' This was it. That night was going to be the moment. The one she'd been preparing for in the last three months.

Sabine started to take wood to prepare another campfire. The one they'd built last night was lost by the strong rain there was. After gattering enough, she started to look for something to light it up.

'Why is there nothing able to make fire here?' Sabine yelled, exhausted of looking.

'Did you forgot I have a light stick with me?' A voice said. Sabine turned, and saw Ezra lighting the campfire with his lightsaber.

'Oh my, I did!' Sabine responded, chuckling. Ezra gave her a smile, then started to prepare the food.

'So, what's the plan?' The Mandalorian asked.

'I took the databanks of the mining facility before it exploded.' Ezra replied, taking a small device from his pocket 'Did you bring your holodisc with you?'

'How could I not?' Sabine answered, giving Ezra the disc.

The Padawan plugged the databanks in the holodisc, which showed them a map of the planet.

'The facility was here.' Ezra said, pointing to a small point in the map 'That means we are here. And the base we're looking for is some miles on west. There's this outpost between us and our objective. We could do a small heist there, don't you think?'

'Why would I loose the chance to blow up some bucketheads?' Sabine replied, giving a small grin.

They finished the breakfast, and soon the two were heading to the Imperial Outpost. In the way there, Sabine saw that Ezra was very quiet.

'Hey, why so bad?' She asked.

'Nothing. Just something I felt during the night. No need to worry about.' Ezra responded.

'_Oh no. Does that mean that he knows about the kiss?_' Sabine imagined.

'I need to worry. Ezra, we're here together. We must help each other. What is it?' The Mandalorian said, concerned.

Ezra hesitated. But then saw the look of doubt on Sabine's face. He needed to tell her.

'It's this dark presence I can't explain. It grew stronger and stronger after each Dark Side moment I had here. First, the temple vision. Then, the arrival of the Inquisitor, followed by our confrontation with him. And last night I felt it more painfully then before. Something is not right.' The Jedi explained.

'As soon as we capture the Imperial Base, we'll find out what it is.' Sabine said, putting her hand over Ezra's shoulder.

'I hope so.' Ezra whispered.

_ 'At least Ezra didn't know about the kiss.' _Sabine thought '_But he knows of something far worse than that._'

After a while, they've reached the outpost. It was small, not even a Lambda shuttle was capable of landing there. Some stormtroopers were guarding the entry of the building.

' 'You take care of them?' ' Ezra asked.

' 'Why would I not?' ' Sabine responded. Ezra smiled to her. She smiled back, then put her helmet on and headed to the troopers.

She stayed behind a tree, and analyzed the location. There were at least 7 troopers guarding the door. Sabine took something from her pocket, and threw it to the other side of the outpost.

' 'Did you hear that?' ' One of the soldiers asked to the others.

' 'Yes. Everyone, follow me. CC- 0991, stay here.' ' The commander ordered to the troopers.

CC-0991 stood there alone, waiting for the others to return. But then, he heard an explosion. He started to run towards the location of the blast, but was stopped by a mandalorian girl with pink and orange armour.

' 'Just get back to the entry, soldier.' ' The girl said.

After a while, Sabine and Ezra had already entered the building. The Padawan did the mind-trick on the stormtrooper back there, which now was unconscious thanks to Sabine.

' 'This was easier than the facility.' ' Ezra said to Sabine.

' 'Let's hope the base is like this too.' ' She joked, putting an miracle on the path. They were going to blow this outpost up too.

' 'Allright, finished here. Let's get out before the explosion.' ' Sabine yelled.

' 'Fine.' ' Ezra answered. But in the way, they found a squad of scout-troopers.

' 'Over there, the rebels reported yesterday!' ' One of them shouted. Then the troopers started to shoot at the two teenagers.

' 'This is going to be a long day.' ' Ezra stated, igniting his lightsaber. Sabine grabbed her pistols, and started to shoot back at the soldiers.

Ezra looked at the troopers, and saw that the one in the front had a granade on his belt. Ezra lifted his hand, and activated the explosive on the soldier's belt.

' 'What t-' ' 'BUM'. Now there were only two troopers left.

' 'How? I didn't even touched my imploders!' ' Sabine shouted, taking down one of the guards.

'The Force has its tricks, Sabine. The Force has its tricks.'

Ezra replied, winking at her.

They took down the last scout-trooper, then rushed towards the exit.

'Hurry! Before they send more reinforcements!' Ezra screamed. But when the two got out of the outpost, they saw an AT-AT standing right in front of them.

'How did thi-' Sabine started, but then was cut by the warmachine there firing at them. The impact of the blast threw Ezra and Sabine away from the outpost. Ezra was thrown into the forest, but Sabine was at a desert area next the imperial building.

Ezra got up, and saw Sabine laid in the ground. Then, two stormtroopers picking her up.

'No no NO!' Ezra screamed. He then rushed towards the troopers, but was stopped by the AT-AT stepping on his path.

The Padawan ignited his lightsaber, and cut the walker's front legs. After a few seconds, the mechanical monstrosity had fallen. Ezra turned, then saw Sabine being put inside an TIE Advanced. Ezra had only seen one type of imperial using that fighter : Dark Side users.

His eyes were wide open. He started to run with all the speed he could.

'SABINE! NO!' He shouted. But then something hit him on the face, and very hard. The Jedi fell to the ground. Then, a figure stood on top of him. A dark cloaked figure. The mysterious Inquisitor.

'You.' Ezra whispered.

'You won't get freed of me so easily. Pain keeps me alive. Suffering makes me stronger. I should thank your Mandalorian friend there for giving me this!' The Inquisitor said, pointing to his chest. Ezra looked, and saw that now it was full of mechanical lungs. A huge chestplate was the only thing that apparently prevented the cloaked figure's organs to drop on top of Ezra.

'Now I shall have my fun with her. And when she's almost dead, I'll come for you. Then, my entertainment shall be completed.' The darkside user completed. He kicked Ezra's head, and headed towards his TIE, where Sabine was.

'Don't. Sabine no...' Ezra whispered, before blacking out. The last thing he was capable to see was the TIE Advanced flying away from there.

Now I ask you : will Ezra be able to rescue Sabine? Or the Inquisitor will have his revenge? Suspense!

Pls review so I can know your thoughts, opinions and wishes. It helps me. Really does.

Hope you all have a nice weekend. See ya later! ;D

May the Force be with you. Always.

End
file.